HEALTH · HAPPINESS · PROSPERITY

ABOUT THIS — AND — ABOUT THAT

NEW YEAR.—According to man's calendar, we enter upon another year today. Actually, the "New Year" is merely a measure used by man to make comfortable his records and regulate his social and economic activities. Nature created time. Man created measured time, as he created many other things, for his own convenience.

IMPROVEMENT.—There was a time when, among certain peoples, and as late as a few hundred years ago, a new season was marked by human sacrifice. Although it was considered an honor to be chosen for sacrifice, it is unlikely that the chosen were very happy about it.

NO CHANGE.—The ushering in of a new year is a period of time when merrymakers hold sway. Some of us old fogies think it a sinful waste of time and money to "party in" the new year. But please don't embarrass us by asking what we did when—well, when we had not counted so many New Year days. Although if you do ask, we will have an answer for you. It will be this (go ahead and say "phooey!"; that's what we did): "We are older and wiser and have learned not to waste our substance and indulge in forbidden things." Yes, go ahead and "phooey" us.

OLD CUSTOM.—Merrymakers have custom to support their fun-making. Records as far back as several thousand years B. C. indicate that at the turn of definite seasons carnivals were held, dancing girls whirled, and sacrifices were made (the latter the horrifying feature). Many of our New Year play habits had their formative beginnings in England hundreds of years ago.

CHANGES.—Of course we have made some changes. In every generation something characteristic of the age is added, something expressive of the spirit or mind of the time. The addition may improve upon the past, or it may not. But it IS added. Year after year of these little additions ultimately will bring about a new look. But underneath, the same old pattern is there. Many so-called "progressives" would do well to remember that.

WHAT'S AHEAD.—Many a person would be frantic with fear, if, seer-like, we could look ahead and KNOW what will happen to us day by day during the next 366 (yes, it's Leap year) days. Fortunately, that cannot be done. I say fortunately, but I do not mean that it is fortunate because we avoid fear. It is fortunate that our minds must cope with problems and that we must learn to anticipate the future by what has happened in the past. We use our minds too little. We enjoy the pleasant paths of life too much. Yet some of the most pleasant of life's paths lie along the bubbling brooks of history, of literature, wherein we learn of the thoughts of persons thousands of years ago and how out of their thoughts arose actions which set history and offered to us a preview of the future as related to our personal and our national and world future.

NOT SO GOOD.—History tells us that our national history of the future will not be as good as our past national history. That's an unpopular thing to write, but it is a fact, and it is written. Historic Americanism as known in the character of the United States up to comparatively recent years is about past. Space will not permit details. But let us remember that we are growing unwieldy, with too many conflicting groups. Remember, that great empires have grown up and passed away, into antiquity—except among historians, no longer remembered. Power changes among nations. The United States long has passed the birth and early growing pains. It will increasingly become a nation of internal conflict. Indolence is rampant. Dependence upon government is the ideal of too many. In an atomic age, when dynamic spirit is needed, lethargy is growing. Read your history for the end results.

BE MERRY.—But let's celebrate the new year's arrival. Let's be merry. Let's hope that in the immediate future we will do no worse than in the immediate past. And that's about all we can expect.

FROM THE HEART.—May YOUR new year be happy and prosperous all the way through.

NEW SEMMLER PAPERS PERSONNEL

Papers Cover Extensive Area

The Semmler Newspapers in Cook county, including The Tinley Park Times, Orland Park Herald, and The Oak Forest Times, present Mr. Dallas Webster, assistant advertising manager, and Mrs. Marie Miller, society and news editor. Mr. Webster also will be associated with the Mokena News-Bulletin.

Mr. Webster joined The Tinley Park Times in early October and after a few weeks transferred to the advertising department. He graduated from Tinley Park grade school and, last June, from Thornton high school. He will be assistant to the manager of The Semmler Newspapers in the advertising department.

The addition of Mr. Webster to the Semmler Newspapers staff was in line with plans previously set to enlarge the newspapers' service to Tinley Park and Oak Forest and Orland Park areas.

We were fortunate in securing Mrs. Miller, a well-qualified society editor, first for social news work, and more recently as news editor also. Mrs. Miller lives on south Oak Park avenue with her husband, Paul. They are next-door neighbors to the Webster family.

With the increasing population of south Cook, the Semmler Newspapers, covering South Cook generally and being the most extensively read local newspapers in Orland township and Bremen township, have plans for meeting increased needs of the combined community.

Other additions to the newsgathering organization, to be announced at an early date, are local reporters in the Oak Forest area for The Oak Forest Times and in Orland Park for The Orland Park Herald. This is in line with the policy of The Semmler Newspapers to give complete local coverage throughout the vast but unified area in which the four newspapers are published.

The Semmler Newspapers bring together a large community of common interests, including village and farming life running from Markham on the east north westerly to Worth, Palos, Orland, and reaching to slightly east of Lemont, southward skirting the cleft of Lockport, southward to pass, in the eastward direction, just north of Manhattan and Monee, where The Semmler Newspaperland border turns north to include Matteson on its way to the starting point in Markham.

The Will county area is served by the county's largest county weekly newspaper, The News-Bulletin, now in its 31st year. Tinley Park Times has 19 years behind it, and Orland Park Herald 18 years. The Oak Forest Times,

Story Features Will Co. Youths

Roger Herlitz and William Herlitz, Jr., who operate farms with their father, William Herlitz, Sr., near Beecher, in Will county, are featured in an illustrated article in the January issue of "Cappers Farmer" entitled "Neat Farm-Welded Wagon." A picture of the wagon they built accompanies the article.

"Give a pair of young mechanics an electric welder, some tools, and materials," the story in the farm magazine points out, in referring to the picture accompanying the article, "and this wagon is a typical example of what you may expect in return. Roger Herlitz and William Herlitz, Jr., made it. The chassis is all metal and the bed is made of angle iron and matched flooring. The wagons are used for handling silage, chopped hay, and ear corn on farms they and their father, William Herlitz, Sr., operate.

"Since wagons are loaded and unloaded mechanically, extra height was not objectionable. The bed was elevated to make possible a swivel-type front axle. That improves steering and makes short turns possible."

82-Year-Old New Lenox Man Dies Suddenly

August Osmus, 82, died suddenly at his home in New Lenox Thursday of last week. Death was believed due to a heart attack. He was a Will county pioneer.

Born in New Lenox, Mr. Osmus farmed near the village until 1936, when he retired and moved into town.

He is survived by his wife, Minnie, three sons, Albert of Joliet, Raymond, of Jackson, Mich., Edward of New Lenox; a brother, Charles of Joliet; seven grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Sonntag funeral home, the Rev. John M. Cleveland officiating. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery, New Lenox.

covering Oak Forest and Markham and other Bremen areas around, is the newest, in its first year.

In keeping with its program to keep up front by earning the commendation of its large number of subscribers, The Semmler Newspapers have further plans to be announced in the not-distant future.

In the meantime, Mr. Webster and Mrs. Miller join the editor and the publisher in wishing everybody a happy and prosperous 1948.

NEW LENOX 3-CAR CRASH INJURES NONE

An ice patch on route 30 just east of New Lenox road was given as the cause of a three-car crash Saturday, when a car driven by Arthur Biddle of University City, Mo., skidded, struck a moving car driven by Mrs. Winifrede E. Ledebuhr, route 30, New Lenox, and then hit a car parked nearby. The skid reportedly started as the Biddle car, going west, started to turn off the road. No one was injured.

The car was owned by Willard Sayers, Elm street, New Lenox, and was unoccupied. With Mrs. Ledebuhr was her daughter.

Mr. Biddle, according to State Police Patrolman, Gus Hendrickson, was on his way to St. Louis, Mo., with his wife and daughter.

All three cars were damaged in the collision.

Lt. Gov. Cross Seeks Top Place

Lieutenant Governor Hugh W. Cross has announced his candidacy for governor on the Republican ticket in the primary election next April 13.

Now serving his second term, the lieutenant governor spent eight years in the lower house, including one term as speaker, before election to his present post. A native of Jerseyville, he is an attorney and farmer.

"I have full and complete knowledge that my candidacy may invite a primary battle with the incumbent," the lieutenant governor said, adding: "This I welcome. I am confident of the outcome."

"It is my sincere belief, and I am far from being alone in this, that for the Republican party to elect a President in 1948, we in Illinois must contribute such leadership. Party harmony is a fine-sounding phrase, but Republicans want party victory," he asserted.

Miss Lambrecht Sang

In the story of the Sizer-Ebert wedding in last week's News-Bulletin it was stated that Marjorie Laraway of Frankfort was the singer. This was incorrectly given us and should have been Miss Kathryn Lambrecht of Frankfort.

Candidacy Found Favor With Voters

Herman C. Grassle has officially announced that he will be a candidate before the voters of Will county at the primaries April 13, for renomination for the office of county auditor on the Republican ticket to succeed himself. The announcement was made, Mr. Grassle said, after he had made a survey of the county, conferring with many of the farmers, laborers, and business men, all of whom have offered only words of the highest commendation for the manner in which he has conducted the affairs of his office during his incumbency, and for his strict maintenance of the financial records of Will county as second to no other in the state.

At the close of the fiscal year, August 31, 1940, Mr. Grassle said, the county general fund showed unpaid bills of $75,537.69, compared to a cash balance of $144,941.49 at August 31, 1946, with no outstanding tax warrants nor unpaid bills.

Receipts and disbursements in the amount of $44,810,123.73 covering the four years 1943 to 1946 have been audited by him and all monies accounted for.

Mr. Grassle comes from a pioneer Will county family. His father was the late Fred Grassle, long identified with the baking industry in Joliet.

Mr. Grassle stated that he surrounded himself with a competent and efficient office force, thus producing records, statistics, and information not previously available, and is always on the alert to improve other records that will be a credit to Will county. His office is ready and willing to give at all times the most complete information, he said.

'THE MESSIAH' IS PRESENTED

A choir of all faiths presented Handel's "The Messiah" at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening in the First Reformed church of South Holland, after two previous successful performances were given before capacity audiences in Chicago Heights last week.

Under the direction of Arthur Lambrecht, head of the music department of the Glenwood Manual Training school for boys, the chorus of 90 voices represented 16 churches in the Chicago Heights area. Many singers were recruited from groups directed by Mr. Lambrecht—the Kiwanis chorus; the Hammond, Ind., Damen choir; the choir of the First Reformed church of South Holland and the First Methodist church of Chicago Heights, and former members of the Bloom township high school choir, which Mr. Lambrecht directed last year.

Miss Lillian Collins, organist, and a string ensemble accompanied the choir.

A Striking Story

An American League umpire named Jack Kerns had a phobia against calling games. No matter how dark it got, Kerns felt that a ball game was nine innings or more. One day when Kerns refused to call a game, the pitcher in desperation huddled with his catcher and whispered, "Listen, you keep the ball in your mitt. I'll wind up and pretend to throw it. You pop it into your glove as though you'd caught it."

There were two strikes on the batter. The pitcher went through his motions the catcher popped his mitt. "Strike three and out!" belated Kerns.

"Strike?" screamed the batter. "Why that ball was two feet outside!"

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. VA to Aid Farm Trainees

As an aid to both the training institution and the veteran, Veterans' administration has announced that it will pay 75 per cent of the estimated tuition, fees and other necessary expenses of any farm training program for four-month periods beginning in March, July and November.

Approved state agencies can qualify for advance payments by certifying to VA that the former system of payment on arrears imposes a financial burden on the state.

VA will pay actual instruction costs, less the advance payment, at the end of each instruction period. In event actual amount due the agency at the end of each period is less than the amount advanced, the agency will refund the difference to VA.

There are now approximately 200,000 veterans enrolled in on-farm training, which combines practical classroom work with farming.

Veterans are eligible for institutional on-farm training under the G.I. bill if they served in the armed forces for 90 days or more at any time between September 15, 1940, and July 25, 1947, and were discharged under conditions other than dishonorable.

Questions and Answers

Q. I am a World War II veteran with 18 months service, 13 months overseas. Since coming back I have tried to get a G.I. loan to buy a home but always it is "yes, with a 10 per cent down payment." I have a family and it has been impossible to make a 10 per cent down payment. I would like to buy around South Bend, Ind. Could you tell me some place there that I could get a loan without a large down payment?

—R. B., Rochester, Ind.

A. While Veterans' administration frowns on the practice of many lenders to require down payments on G.I. home loans and has declared that the practice not only renders a disservice to the veteran, but also defeats the primary purpose of the G.I. bill, which provides for 100 per cent financing of veterans' homes, there is nothing VA can do about it under the law if these lenders insist on the down payment. However, VA has announced that it will give veterans all information it has and direct them to lending institutions which are favorably disposed to make G.I. loans without necessity of a down payment. So in your case, suggest that you write to your nearest VA office, probably at Indianapolis, set out your difficulties and ask them to direct you to a lender who will make a 100 per cent G.I. loan.

Q. I was drafted during World War I, July 13, 1918, from my position as a railroad and sent to special training detachment at the Richmond fair grounds, Richmond, Va. I was held in this camp until December 13, 1918, and was given an honorable discharge on that date. In 1925 I was given a check for $19 by the veterans' bureau with a statement that only 69 days had been certified to them by the war department as my completed service; that I had been transferred to the students' army training corps after the 69th day and my service was not creditable after that. According to my draft and discharge papers I served 158 days and as far as I knew it was all in the U. S. army. How and where can I get proper consideration and credit for my complete army service? More than 50 men in this camp are suffering the same fate.—J. T. S., Cumberland, Md.

A. Write to the Liaison officer, Demobilized Records Section, Office of the Adjutant General, Pentagon Bldg., Washington, D. C., and explain your situation in detail. I am sure you will be given an answer explaining the apparent difference in your service record.

Q. Can a veteran take a correspondence course under the educational provisions of the G.I. bill? —A. J. S., Altus, Okla.

A. Yes, there are more than 100 correspondence schools approved by Veterans' administration for correspondence courses for which VA pays tuition. Suggest you contact your nearest VA office and obtain a list of the approved schools.

Q. Does the government provide seeing-eye dogs for blind veterans? We have a friend who was blinded by explosion of a mine and he is drawing disability from Veterans' administration for his injury. Can you tell us about the dog? —D. T. L., Austin, Minn.

A. Veterans' administration says that any veteran blinded and entitled to disability compensation for a service connected injury is entitled to a seeing-eye or guide dog including shipping expenses of the dog or traveling expenses of the veteran to and from his home.

The Wrong MUSIC

JESSIE walked slowly through the park. Overhead the sky was clear, making the stars stand out. Tiny pinpoints of light, they left no trace of the storm which had blanketed the ground with a thick white cover. She turned and looked behind her. The solitary tracks she had made looked lonesome by themselves. There should be two sets, she thought with a sigh. Last New Year's Eve there were two sets. Mine and Jerry's. The thought of Jerry made her feel worse. She tried to push it out of her mind. See here, Jessie, she admonished herself, you're out here to get some exercise and enjoy yourself. Stop being a fool. It's over, finished. You and Jerry are all washed up. Forget it. But her inner mind wouldn't let her.

Ruth, her roommate, had the radio going full blast as she opened the door. Gay dance music poured out, filling the room with memories. "That you, Jess?" She called from the bedroom.

"Yeah," Jessie took off her pert little hat and threw it at the closet door, then regaining her self-control she laid it neatly on the shelf.

"Wish you'd change your mind and go with us."

"I have a headache." She tried to get interested in a story. It was no use, even the stories were full of happy couples. As happy as Jerry and I used to be. There I go again,

Ruth, her roommate, had the radio going full blast.

she reminded herself, why can't I just forget him? That stupid quarrel. She tried to remember what it had been about and couldn't. It seemed very important at the time. Anyway it had done the trick. I was almost over it too, she thought, until the holidays got here.

"Now if someone would just play Rhapsody in Blue," Ruth's voice was full of mocking.

"Do I look that bad?" Jessie turned around.

"You look worse. Honest, honey, I think you're crazy to sit around on New Year's Eve and stew about one man. The world is full of them."

"Not like Jerry."

"Jerry's a great guy all right but why grieve about him the rest of your life? You're only young once, you know."

"I'd just spoil things for the rest of you. You know what happened the last time I tried it. Everything we would do would remind me of him."

"Okay, honey," Ruth shrugged her shoulders, "have it your way." She went back into the bedroom and started dressing. Ten minutes later she came out and whirled around the room. "How do I look?"

Jessie looked up from her magazine. "You look swell. He'll probably want to eat you tonight."

"Thanks, honey," Ruth started for the door as they heard a knock. It was her date.

Jessie sank back down in the chair as they left. I won't cry, she told herself. No matter what, I won't cry, but I can't stand that music any longer. She crossed the room and snapped off the radio. The sudden silence was even worse. She turned it back on and spun the dial. Music on every station. Worst of all it was music from all year. Music Jerry and she had danced to, she thought bitterly. The wrong music for now.

She looked up, startled by a knock on the door.

"Hey," a man's voice called out. "Open up."

It was Jerry. "Hi, darling," he smiled, "if I'm not welcome you can throw me out. But I just had to try. . . I couldn't stay away on New Year's Eve."

Now, she thought happily as she rushed into his arms, now the music is right. Just right.

Pagans' New Year

The origin of the celebration of January 1 has been traced to the pagans, and at one period in the middle ages the debate over when the new year arrived became so furious that it was observed on four different days, March 25, December 25, Easter, and by a small group on January 1. When Augustus revised the calendar January 1 was adopted.

Beliefs That Matter

Lesson for January 4, 1948

THE first three months of 1948 will reintroduce us to some of the great Christian teachings in regard to God, Man, Salvation and Christian Living. While many of us have studied these great teachings again and again, we shall be greatly profited in the lessons of this quarter, looking at life in today's changing world in the light of these timeless truths.

Dr. Newton signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this Book; but these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name." John 20:30, 31. "Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them; for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee." 1 Timothy 4:16.

The Story of Lydia

SEE how the above truths are borne out in the story of Lydia, Acts 16:11-15. Here was a prosperous business woman, making an honorable living, "whose heart the Lord opened." Paul taught her the way of salvation. She and her household were baptized, she took Paul and his helpers into her home, and became a tower of strength as the Gospel was being spread throughout Europe.

Lydia was not attracted to Paul by his eloquent preaching, but by the story of God's love which Paul faithfully gave. And when she had been saved, she began immediately to translate her faith into works.

Proving Our Beliefs

JUNIOR boys and girls will like this story about Lydia because it is practical. We can see a woman opening her home to the preachers of God. We can see her in her place of business, inviting her customers to come and hear Paul preach. She was a living sermon.

Every junior boy and girl in every Sunday school in the United States can render the same vital service during 1948. There are literally millions of boys and girls in this country who have never been to Sunday school. They do not know anything about a Sunday school, but they would like to know.

You can start a movement in your community that will solve problems that the mayor and police cannot solve. They will thank you for your help, and God will bless you in time and eternity. Invite that neighbor boy or girl to Sunday school.

Belief Makes a Difference

YOU are what you believe. Ask the football or basketball coach. Ask the man who teaches people to fly planes in your community. You are what you believe. "Every one who believes that Jesus is the Christ is a child of God," 1 John 5:1.

And it matters greatly what you believe. You can go wrong very easily by believing what is false about God, just as you can go wrong very easily in flying a plane by failing to believe the right thing about the laws of physics.

Beliefs That Matter

JESUS is the Christ, the Son of God. That is the number one belief that matters. It was so on the day when Jesus announced, "On this rock I will build my church," Matthew 16:18. It is absolutely basic in every relationship of life.

I meet with business and professional men every day, in widely varying walks of life, who tell me that they are sustained by this belief. During the recent war, men lived in this basic belief. In these trying days at hand and ahead, belief in Jesus as the Son of God is the norm. We cannot face these difficult days without this anchor. And all this quarter we shall be studying, Sunday after Sunday, this great truth and those that grow out of this fundamental concept.

What a privilege to teach this great truth! The Sunday school teachers of our country are the most important single group we have. By their voluntary service, they are pointing our people to the one sure road that leads to the City of God. My prayer is that they shall daily seek to qualify under the formula of 1 Timothy 4:16. "Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them; for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee."

Deck yourself in a colorful turban and dangling earrings, and be a crystal-gazer. Or there are nine thrilling ways of telling fortunes by cards.

And don't overlook the tea leaves, dice, dominoes and of course horoscopes. All these methods explained in our booklet No. 65. Double Up

A chorus girl was telling the other girls in the dressing room about her birthday party. "You should have seen the cake! There were 17 candles!"

"Seventeen candles?" queried one of the chorines. "What did you do, burn them at both ends?"

That Way

"I've spent a fortune on my girl's face."

"High price beauty treatments?"

"No, feeding it in expensive restaurants."

Bride's father to groom: "My boy, you're the second happiest man in the world."

More Hash

A young bride, disturbed by her husband's presence in the kitchen while she was preparing dinner, accidentally knocked her cookbook on the floor.

"You've made me lose the place," she cried, "and I haven't the least idea what I'm cooking!"

AROUND THE HOUSE

For a flash of color with your skirt and blouse or wool dress try the new vogue—a thin wool scarf with fringed ends used as a sash.

A brilliant polish can be given to cleaned glass such as mirrors, picture glass or door glass by rubbing with a lintless cloth which has been dampened with cold vinegar.

A spiky cookie put into the cookie jar with a plain vanilla wafer will ruin both. Fill the jar with one kind and use another jar for other cookies.

When removing a frock, place it on a hanger immediately and hang it in the air so that it may be thoroughly dried out. A fragrantly scented sachet hung inside the dress will leave its essence with your garment as it dries.

To make ripe olives shiny and bright, roll them in a few drops of olive oil or salad oil and cover until ready to use.

When duck or goose is being prepared for roasting, place fowl on its breast.

A noted authority on flowers and flower arrangement advises the use of glass or white pottery vases or bowls as these go well with the colors of all flowers and the decorative colors in all rooms. Vases of decided color, unless bought especially to go with a particular color scheme or period room, distract attention from their contents.

After washing your face with warm water and rinsing with cold, pat on witch hazel. This will close pores and make your skin smooth and soft.

Sagging floors often are caused by wood shrinkage or the warping of a joist. A fairly satisfactory correction can be made by driving wedges between the top of the joist and the floor. Rubber wedges cut from an old automobile tire often will reduce the creaking.

It isn't necessary to soak clothes for more than 30 minutes. Longer soakings will open the fibers.

Streamlined Skiers Do 90 MPH Down Icy Hill

In the past decade, champion skiers entered in Flying Kilometer events, in which the object is to cover the distance of 3,281 feet down an icy hill in the least time, have hit speeds as high as 90 miles an hour when wearing a streamlined metal hood that materially lessens wind resistance.

For Joyful Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

This splendid recipe is used by millions every year, because it makes such a dependable, effective medicine for coughs due to colds. It is so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any drugist, get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its soothing effect on throat and bronchial irritations. Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and fill up with your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough medicine, very effective and quick-acting, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be surprised by the way it takes hold of coughs, giving quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Let's go to town —at home!

NO TELLING what tomorrow's weather may be. It fools the best fore-caster. But we do want chintz for the windows. We do need a carpet sweeper, a new percolator, and a new end-table in the living-room. And we don't want to sash around rainy streets to hunt them. Problem: How to thwart the weather man. Simple enough! Let's sit down by the fireplace and read the advertisements. Here it's comfortable and snug. We'll take the newspaper page by page, compare prices, qualities, brand-names. Tomorrow, rain or shine, we'll head for the store that has what we want, and home again in a jiffy.

NEW HOPE • BEST WISHES

Time, the one monarch to whom the whole world pays obeisance, poises his scythe to sweep lack another year into history's pages.

Few tears mark the death of the old year, but there is gladness at the advent of a new era, which man feels is to prove better and more fruitful than the old one.

May new faith, and new courage be your lot in 1948.

Magnet Brings Up Nail From Intestines of Boy

Using a special magnet, an Atlanta physician recently removed a 1½-inch nail that had been lodged for six days in the duodenum (first part of the small intestine) of a four-year-old boy. In this case, the first on record in which an object was removed from this part of the body without a surgical operation, nearly six hours were required for the magnet to reach the nail, but only two minutes for the magnet and nail to be drawn back into the stomach and up through the esophagus.

THE FICTION CORNER

PET PEST

By ROBERT DENNIS

THE footsteps came down the city room and halted at the door of Clint Lipton's office. Penny Alder felt eyes on her, boring down through the barrage of typewriter keys she was sending up. Something about Clint Lipton put a chip on her shoulder—

"Miss Alder—" the voice was too polite to belong to her pet pest, "—is Clint comin' back today?"

She looked up at the old man who stood in the door of Clint's room, a shiny serge suit bagging around his lean, stooped figure like a piece of wilted lettuce. She nodded. An assistant society editor had troubles enough. Let Clint Lipton take care of the sports department and his own pests. Old Hughey Lawler was his problem—

The old fellow touched the yellowed, saw-brimmed straw hat clamped down over his thin fringe of white hair.

"I've got some news about The Kid for Clint to write up," he said, as he crossed the narrow aisle.

"Oh," Penny replied helplessly. If it was about The Kid old Hughey would stand and gab forever—

"Course I've got to give it to Clint. I've been keepin' Clint right up to date on The Kid—" He swallowed at something.

"So he's told me." With dull fascination she watched the old fellow's Adam's apple climb up and down the stretch of turkey-like neck above the over-size collar. Clint also had said—that the next time old Hughey tried to fold his ears back, he was going to—

"Did I ever show you the picture The Kid sent me when he was trainin' out on the Coast?" Hughey pushed a post-card portrait under her nose—a while-you-wait photograph of a young fellow in sailor blues, his hat cocked at an angle over one belligerent eye.

"A fine lookin' boy, Miss Alder." She'd seen the face before. Her glance strayed in through the open door of Clint's office to where a shaft of late afternoon sunshine spotlighted a photograph tacked on the wall—a bare-torsoed kid in fighting pose.

She'd always looked down her short straight nose at those pictures of Clint's brawn and beef friends—the guys with tin ears and bent noses, the guys heaving forward passes—the tough he-guys.

And Clint Lipton—with his head of wild rusty hair, and that habitual frown wedged between his deep-set gray eyes—was part of his muscle menagerie, as far as she was concerned.

"My grandson, Miss Alder—" You'd have thought the scrappy kid in the sailor suit was an admiral, from the pride in old Hughey's voice. "You ask Clint if The Kid wasn't on his way of being welter-weight champ—before he wanted to enlist—"

"I'll bet he was." Penny's comment dropped like a pebble into the deep pool of Hughey Lawler's pride. He gushed words.

Penny Alder actually was glad to see Clint's rust-colored head appear. She almost welcomed his deep frown when he spotted her caller. Old Hughey turned to Clint.

"I've got something for you to write up, Clint—"

Clint's nod toward his office was about as friendly as an umpire's thumb. "I can only give you a minute—"

"Sure—" The old fellow turned. Penny found the Lipton frown aimed at her. "You're a pal," he

"You haven't got your hat on," said Clint gruffly. "I suppose that means it's another 'no date.'" accused, "you know that old guy gets me down."

She looked up at him, and that chip was on her shoulder.

"For holding him," he scowled, "you're going to break down and go out to dinner—and places—with me tonight."

"Is that a pass or—a penalty?"

"Take your choice—only get your hat on." He wheeled away.

Penny stared after the back of his sun-burned neck. Why could he annoy her more than any other man she'd ever known? His very vitality; the way that shaft of late sun put sparks in his rusty hair—everything about him bothered her.

"Let's have it fast, Hughey," Clint said, "I've got a date—"

That's what he thought. She closed her typewriter desk with a bang. She looked in again—

Clint's frown was concentrated on that latest picture of The Kid. He reached for a yellow telegram old Hughey held out.

"I come to tell you first, Clint," the old fellow's shoulders slumped,

"because The Kid would want it written up on your page—where his friends could see it. He ain't comin' back, Clint."

Penny didn't get it at first—and then her chest went all tight for that old man in there. The way he stood—the tone of his voice—said that everything he'd been living for had been wiped out by a telegram sent to "the next of kin."

Clint kept frowning.

"You know what to say about The Kid, Clint," old Hughey prompted. "Tell 'em about that sweet left of his, and how nobody ever got past it."

The old fellow talked on and on. Clint listened, his face deadpan.

Penny Alder listened, too. She was still at her desk when Clint and Hughey Lawler came out.

"That picture—" the old fellow said anxiously, "—I wouldn't want to lose it—"

"I'll get it back to you." Clint was letting him go without even one word of sympathy.

"Sure—well—thanks. I guess I won't be coming around any more, Clint. I mean, there won't be any more news about The Kid—"

Clint glowered at Hughey Lawler slowly started away—then, suddenly, he strode after him.

"You can't just walk out on your friends like that, Hughey." He gripped the old fellow's arm hard. "Drop around—anytime you feel like talking about The Kid—"

Penny doubted her ears, but the smile the old boy gave Clint was real enough. "Sure—I will, Clint."

Clint Lipton turned and came back—to halt at her desk.

"You haven't got your hat on—" his voice was gruff. "I suppose that means it's another 'no date.'"

"I—" she began, her eyes searching his.

"O. K.—go on, say it. So I gave him the brush-off by hanging out the welcome sign—"

She'd never tried to look beyond that scowl he always wore. Like The Kid's left—it wasn't easy to get past his guard—

"You really like old Hughey Lawler," she said abruptly.

"Sure—if I didn't like the old pest I wouldn't let him bother me, would I? ... But you wouldn't understand. You never give a guy a chance to see if you can like him—"

For a moment Penny matched frowns with her pet pest. She could feel his puzzled eyes follow her as she stood slowly, and moved toward the coat rack. He was right—she hadn't been able to understand why she'd let him bother her—but it was becoming clear. She must have liked the real Clint Lipton all along—even when she was carrying a chip on her shoulder for a tough guy who didn't exist—

When Penny Alder turned she was smiling—and had her hat on.

REA Setup Gives Impetus

To Farm Electrification

Half of all United States farms have been electrified since the REA program was started.

In announcing the basic allotments for REA loans in the states, the department of agriculture compared the number of unelectrified farms in each state with the total number of farms in the state to give the percentage of unelectrified farms. The eight states having the highest proportion of electrified farms were Connecticut with 98.5 per cent, followed by Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Washington, New York, Idaho and Oregon, all of which were more than 92 per cent electrified.

At the other end of the list were North Dakota, with only a little more than 15 per cent of the farms electrified, preceded by South Dakota, Mississippi, Nebraska, Tennessee, New Mexico, Montana and Kansas, which had nearly 42 per cent electrified.

The other 32 states ranged between the 42 per cent and 92 per cent limits. For the country as a whole, the July, 1947, figures show 61 per cent of all farms electrified as compared with 54.3 per cent a year earlier. Nearly 400,000 farms were electrified during the 1947 fiscal year, the largest increase on record for any year since the program started. In 1935 less than 11 per cent of U. S. farms had electric service.

Answer to Puzzle Number 45

Series H-47

Many Don't Believe Adams

At each four year period when a president is to be selected many members of congress try for the office. However, in John Quincy Adams' opinion, as expressed while in the White House, if you want to be happy, go to congress, but don't be president. After he had served as president he was elected to congress. At that time he wrote in his diary, "My election as president was not half so gratifying."

Those Souvenir Guns

Beware of souvenir weapons. No American ammunition is made for Jap arms. Many other foreign weapons are not safe for use with the generally more powerful similar American ammunition. The German semi-automatic Gewehr 41-M particularly is a potential postwar booby trap. Unless its bolt is locked securely in position, it will fly back and tear into a shooter's face.

Opposed Earlier Progress

There was early opposition to electric trolleys on the ground they would scare horses. One inventor suggested that trolleys be camouflaged with a dummy horse's head. Some 108 years ago advertisements appeared for the public to fight against railroad expansion. In the Gay Nineties many were opposed to telephone, believing that the wires soon would block the cities.

Slash Burning Benefits

Slash burning is a method of minimizing fire danger on cut-over areas by disposing of the accumulation of tree tops, limbs, windfalls, dead underbrush and other debris, which is on the ground after logging. The burning must be done in small units and is safest when the slash is damp from recent rains or snowfalls. Slash burning is unnecessary in many forest regions.

Non-Staining Rubber

Recent improvement in synthetic rubber makes the product non-staining. This non-staining feature is achieved by using a new rubber stabilizer or preservative, which does not cause white rubber to darken on exposure to sunlight and which does not stain white or light colored surfaces with which it comes in contact.

Pressure Canning

A pressure canner may be used for processing fruits. If it is deep enough it may be used as a water bath canner. A pressure canner may be used to process fruits at 0 to 1 pound pressure without having the containers of food completely covered with water. Put water in the canner to the shoulders of the jars; fasten cover. When the live steam pours steadily from the open vent, start counting time. Leave vent open and process for the same time given for the boiling-water bath.

Arab League States

The seven leading Arab states which in 1945 formed the common front of the Arab league cover a vast region extending north, south and east of Palestine. They are Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Iraq, Trans-Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and Yemen. These Arab nations spread a shifting yet remarkably uniform panorama of life in an area nearly 150 times the size of Palestine. Everywhere are signs of the modern innovations that have resulted from the gradual penetration of western ways.

Searching for New Plants

Plant explorers of the U. S. department of agriculture are searching the world for new plants and breeding stock to improve crops already in use in this country. Most of U. S. crops originate from plants brought from abroad. Importation of crops has been taking place since colonial times, but plant scientists say that not half of the world's plants which might grow in the U. S. have been tried here.

Farmers Use Plywood

Many farm buildings, such as portable chicken brooders, are built of exterior fir plywood because they are draft-free and warm, as well as easy to move. New silos are being built entirely of plywood and old silos are lined with exterior plywood to get a smooth, tight inner surface.

Non-Member Speaker

The speaker of the house of representatives need not be a member of the house. The house is empowered to choose its speaker and other officers without restrictions. However, the speaker always has been a member of the house.

Battery Protection

Pouring out the electrolyte and putting the battery away when not in use is a good way to ruin it. Keep it charged, with the liquid above the tops of the plates. Since a battery gradually loses charge while standing and because a discharged battery deteriorates rapidly, a charger circuit should be put on once a month.
